Talk about a very local true crime story! On May 16, 1928, Lehr's grandmother was murdered in what was then the Snowden Village. The cold case murder of a coal miner's wife has never been solved. Karen's extensive research includes photographs, the coroner's report and statements from neighbors. She will present some possible scenarios of how she thinks the crime was committed.

Jun. 5th - "The Whiskey Rebellion: A Distilled History History of an American Crisis" Author Brady J. Crytzer (CC)

It was a bloody bottleneck of opposing American values soon after the Revolutionary War. It was about taxes and government influence. Issues that still haven't been entirely resolved. And some of it happened in our backyard.
